Section 3: Please read the important information below

To help us prevent financial crime and comply with money laundering regulations, we need to verify the identity of each ReAssure customer. To do this, we'll use your personal information to carry out an online check with a reference agency.

The reference agency will then verify your identity against public records and check whether you have a credit history. This won't give us any information about your actual borrowings and won't affect your ability to obtain credit.

If the agency tell us there isn't enough information to carry out the check (for example, you're not listed on the electoral roll), you'll be asked to provide further proof of identification. The agency will keep a record of the search on your file but this information will not be available to any third parties.
